The Rota-pro, sold by Nexus DMS, is one of the current market options for supporting otherwise ambulant and weight-bearing clients who struggle to get in and out of bed independently.

When I tried this bed at The OT Show in Nov 2016 I asked the question “what makes it different to the rest?” essentially trying to determine why I would recommend this product over some of its competitors.

The general principles of the bed are very similar to others; the structure of the bed allows the mattress to rotate 90 degrees and goes from fully sitting to fully supine with simple hand held controls. There are a variety of models which give flexibility over weight limit and client size. The bed does exactly what you would expect it to do and does it very comfortably. The rail options provide good flexibility to support both bed mobility and sit to stand transfer without need for further adjustment. The only feature that the bed does not offer is a tilt element from position of sitting once turned but as the height adjustment feature is still available this should not impact on suitability for the vast majority.

What made it stand out for me however was the price.

At around £4000 cheaper than some of its competitors not only does the bed do what it needs to it makes it financially accessible to a far wider client group, whether it be to support efficient use of allocated funds via case management, through private purchase or when requesting in statutory services.

Nexus always seem such an approachable and friendly company and offer excellent support to the clinician. I am always impressed .
